~~He can quarter in all the West. He can~~ quarter in till he get blue in the face,
it weren't matter a bit I did it. Yes,
I did it. I killed the son of a bitch, and I'm proud of it. Maybe now they'll get off my land. It's been trying to get the off of land for years, maybe now I've succeeded. Yes, I did it. I was sitting there on the porch, just the two of us, mother and ~~me~~ I heard just burst in a battle of Pat.
He came in Pat. I saved it all in bits.
I tried to dish it with in. But you in cutts now. We were sitting there talking when Charlie came here saying and sweetie and he says
me to hide him.

"Hide you for a bit?" I said. "Hide you from a lot. Ugly over 'd you waiting?"

"He must hear me," he said. "I can't stand to let nobody hear me, I'm a Green Man."

"Who must hear you?" he said. "Bear?"

"Yes," he said. "Please come, hide me." "Pardon, please hide me."

"Set any gun here, you country —" Math started to run in, and stepped ^{over} ^{the} ^{line}.

He was a man 'Wg one two behind pants, and flesh as ~~a thing~~ the inside of a thing, and now crying like a baby.

"Isn't that a shame?" Math said.

"Look at this. Just look at this."

"Please, Eddie." Charlie said.

Then we heard the trorter crying out of the birds into the gutter.

"Eddie?" Charlie begged him. "Please, miss white folk, ^{miss} white lady."

"Look at that joy," Math said. "I ^{stand} ^{and} ⁱⁿ ^{it} ^{here}. I ^{stand} ^{and} ⁱⁿ ^{it} ^{here}. Please, set any gun here for country joy, or I'll kill you myself."

The traitor came crying into the quarter, saying Dennis all over the place. It was getting clear and clear to Mather's house.

"I'm goin' with Dennis," Clarke said,
"Dennis you all tell him where I was. Please Mather, Dennis you all tell him."

When the traitor stepped before the door
he heard already ^{disgusted} and the house.

"Clarke in the?" Bear called for the traitor. He was dumb in bed, Carby had Carby had 15

We didn't know he ^{then he was a cowboy on a}
"I know he's in the," Bear called for the ^{trailer - I never did see there} traitor. "Send him out here. I know he's in the. You hear me, all you?"

We didn't say hi.

That's all what needed on one got in for and piped to the ground. I can make out your motion for one of the came by the fire place. I had seen it then a thousand times. Math had a got a shell on ~~top~~ the path, and I looked both ways, and one got out ~~the~~ into the pen. Bear was stuck; near the ditch and crying with Math.

"Don't come any farther, Bear,"
said to him.

"I want Charlie," Bear said.

"When I see Charlie I'll tell him you looking for him, but don't come in the yard with that gun," I said.

"You better ~~get~~ ^{keep} on ~~the~~ ^{of the} way, every
he said.

"I mean it, Bear."

"I was just down the a dog's yard, and I will get my dog's work done."

"Stop, Bear," he said.

"You don't want the dog,"
he said.

"Stop, Bear," he said.

"You don't want it."
